THIS DOCUMENT CONTAINS INFORMATION AFFECTING THE NATIONAL DEFENSE OF THE UNITED STATES, WITHIN THE MEANING OF TITLE 18, SECTIONS 793 AND 794, OF THE U.S. CODE, AS AMENDED. ITS TRANSMISSION OR REVELATION OF ITS CONTENTS TO OR RECEIPT BY AN UNAUTHORIZED PERSON IS PROHIBITED BY LAW. THE DESTRUCTION OF THIS REPORT IS PROHIBITED.

THIS IS UNEVALUATED INFORMATION

1. "The flying targets used by anti-aircraft artillery in Tallin were made of large tarpaulin 'sleeves' which were called 'dipol sleeves' (dipolnye rukava). These sleeves were 20 meters long and had a diameter of 6 m. in front and 3 m. at the back. Seven copper wires were sewed into both sides of the sleeve and these copper wires were used as reflectors for the radar stations used in firing anti-aircraft batteries.
2. "The sleeves were pulled by airplanes by means of a 1500-2000 m. long cable. The sleeves were attached to the cable by means of six ropes each 50 m. long:

The sleeves were of various colors and had signs and figures on the sides.

3. "The firing practices of medium-calibre anti-aircraft artillery were conducted at a height of 4000-10,000 m.
4. "During firing practice 'dipol pilot balloons' (dipolnye shary-piloty) were released. Sections of copper wire with cross section of 1 mm. were sewn into the sides of the 'pilot balloons' and the wires had the length of half the wave of the firing battery's radio-location station. The apparatus 'PUAZO-3' was also used at the anti-aircraft artillery firing practices. Automatically and by means of 'electrical indexes' this apparatus gave all data required for firing to every gun of an anti-aircraft battery. The required operations of the gun, however, were executed by hand (the numbers of the gun turned the levers of the mechanisms [sic])"
